The structure inside the JSON file [creativeEmotions.js] can be accessed by typing the “ed” variable in the browser console. The information is organized like this: ed > domain > levels > properties > emotions.

For example, in the Music domain, there is a level called Harmony Melody. This level has a property named Sonance, which in turn, contains a value called Harmony Consonant. Further, this value is associated with several Emotions, such as, Happiness.

The JSON file also allows us to directly access the level of information desired. We can access a value and see all associated emotions or access an emotion and see all associated values. Generally speaking, we can search up (bottom-up) and down (top-down) the information tree.
